“ Another memory I have of her is when she threw her ball into my bowl of cereal. I was sitting at the kitchen table, and Pepper was getting all fussy because she wanted some, so she threw her ball at me— Except it went over my head and RIGHT into my bowl of cereal.

She used to throw things when she wanted something else. She'd throw her toys, her chewies, you name it. Never did she manage to throw something into something else like that again.

“ I remember the day we first got her, seeing her for the first time, but my favorite memory, which I hold dear, is from the car ride home.

In my mind, it was a peaceful night. It was either raining or just finishing, and Pepper was curled up in my lap in the backseat, fast asleep. She was so small that I swear she could fit perfectly in my lap. This scene is one of the first things my mind goes to when I think about her.
