“ i had the pleasure of sharing 15 years with snoodles he was my best friend we went through a lot of good and trying times together. he loved listening to my music. he was a different type of cat he loved everyone. and he understood most of what i was saying to him. around Christmas time he would get under the tree like he was one of the presents which he really was. i will never be the same without him .but one thing i know is god doesn't make mistakes.missing you dearly his owner jeffrey hammond.

“ I am snoodle's Mom I love snoodles when I first met him I played the game with him called peek-a-boo he was so adorable and he fell in love with me I was his new mom and I knew he loved me because she always slept beside me and he would lick my arms and my hands my feet I would have to cover myself up with blanket to keep them from licking on me because she was showing me that he loved me and we used to play with him with the little red dot light and he would Chase it and run and slide across the kitchen floor and then we got him a little roommate named star now she's missing him too I really wish she didn't have to go but God knows where he belongs right now I hope to see him again he was my baby and I can't duplicate him cuz I'm going to try to find somebody like you even though you'll never be another cat likes noodles he used to walk across my lap like it was a bridge LOL and he do this several times before he decided to find his spot where he would be comfortable and that was next to me I love you snoodle he even sometimes would get up under the Christmas tree like he was a gift which he really was a gift he was just the whole different kind of cat like he had human instinct going but not forgotten I love you nunu

“ I'm his mom , me and Snoodles used to play peek a boo, he also used to take my seat every time I would move or get up from my couch and Snoodles loved to sleep with me on my couch and licked my hands and my feet it felt so funny I'd have to hide my arms with a blanket to keep him from licking my arms I love Snoodles I can't believe he's gone ☹️💔

“ Snoodles was my best friend. We spent 15 years together. He loved everyone. Never seen a cat that just loved everyone. I'm a musician and, when I went in my studio to make music he, would come in and lay down to listen. He loved my wife very much. I thank God for letting him be a part part of my life. Things aren't going to be the same. His owner Jeffrey hammond.
