

White Sox Balogh

January 12, 2008 - July 10, 2024

White Sox - I never thought I'd write your obituary, and I can't sum up your life in just a few words, so I think a letter to you is more fitting. People say that I saved you, but I think it's really you that saved me. You came into my life at a time I didn't know how much I needed you. You were 16 years old but so full of life.

You taught me that I often lack patience, that I need to be gentler, that I need to think before I act, and that I need to lead with love always. I will forever miss the way you used to almost bounce on your paws with your ears flapping when you knew it was time to eat and the way you wagged your tail when you saw me, as if I was your favorite person in the world. When I fed you, you would look back at me after each bite as if checking to make sure I was still there. I can't forget your bark and its almost beagle sound. You loved your dental chews, even if your teeth made it hard to chew them. Even when Maddie tackled you in her excitement, you usually just smiled and wagged your tail. And I can't forget how much you just enjoyed being outside, the way you just stood there and took in the world around you.

I wish there were more car rides in your future, more trips for doggie ice cream, more pet store adventures, more bonfires, and more goodnight kisses.

Part of me thinks you waited to leave until we were both there with you.

Another part of me hoped that when I laid with you after, that you would wake up and this would all be just a bad dream. All of me hopes that you know how loved you are and that you will always have a home here. Our time together was nowhere near long enough. And I hope that when my time comes that you'll be there waiting, wagging that tail. For to know you was to love you, and I only wish I had known you more than 3 months.

Tribute Wall

HE

“ You did save him and are a perfect human just for white soxs. This is beautiful and I'm in tears. The moment I saw white Sox on the kennel cement floor I knew I had to find him the PERFECT home to see love and pillows before his time was up. That perfect home was you. I can't explain to you what you meant to white Sox and me. He was waiting for you and that gentle love YOU gave him that and peace in the end. Forever thankful for you ❤️💔

Heather - July 24, 2024 at 08:17 PM

KR

Thank you for discovering him and bringing him here ❤️

Kristen - July 24, 2024 at 08:41 PM

ME

“ I have no memories to share, I just wanted to say that your Obit was a beautiful tribute. RIP

Melissa - July 24, 2024 at 06:09 PM

KR

Thank you ❤️

Kristen - July 24, 2024 at 08:36 PM